DRUMMERS HONOR NATION'S FATHERS

Standing Before Jamestown Church, They Hear Its History and Sing National Hymn.

"Ignatz" Members Keep Boat Lively With Their Songs and Pranks.

Standing bareheaded before the little church that was built by the first white settlers in Virginia, the $00 members and guests of the Travelers' Protective and guests of the Travelers' Protective Association, who made the trip to Jamestown yesterday, sung "My Country, Tis of Thee," with all the fervor of pilgrims before a shrine. The traveling men have never failed to get an element of the dramatic into all of their loings, and the way they paid their espects to the founders of American berty was the most impressive of all. After the singing, Robert Lecky, Jr. English settlement had been inded, and of the vicissitudes of fam-and Indian war through which it seed. Then the delegates scattered all over the premises, examining every cells, reading every inscription with scrupulous thoroughness, and acquiring

"Just think!" he exclaimed in the expansive Hoosier manner, "this little town is the mother, the father, the cradle of these whole United States. Ain't it wonderful! I'll take beer."

Well Worth the Trip.

Although the Old Dominion boat Pocahontas made a start that was early even for a traveling man, everyhody was there when she tooted away from the dock, and every one was in the best of spirits. As the broad waters of the James, touched with the morning light, opened before the delegates, with the rolling wooded hills on either side, where stood white-columned Colonial mansions, the crowd was almost awed into silence.

Another badger fight, similar to the one on the Richmond roof garden, was held, one Mr. Boggs, of Buffulo, N. Y., being a most satisfactory victim of the sell. He swore with lifted hand that he had no bets on the fight, and then pulled the roge with that perfect faith in the result, which belongs only to prophets and suckers. The badger that was not there gave him the shock of his life.

JURY DISAGREES

Many compliments were heard upon the way the entire expedition was organized and run through by President Rogers, of Post A. The crowd of 800 people was marshaled off and on the heat and fed two excellent meals without a hitch, and with the utmost far-"Ignatz," the secret fraterity of TP. As was very much in evidence, clad in tail white caps berrowed from the catterer, they went all over the boat gathering candidates to "get into the groove," and the initiations were earlied out on a large scale. "I want to find out about this," said Senator Cummins. "It is a rather serious matter to forge a signature of the secretary of the Senate to an order that never was made."

The committee finally dropped the question with the expressed determination to pursue it further and investigate books and records of every sort to get the information it seeks. Senator Lodge will be heard in explanation to pursue it further and investigate books and records of every sort to get the information it seeks. Mr. Palmer became indignant at Senator Reed's efforts to find out everything done by the beet men in Washington. He said he supposed they talked with Senators and Congressmen. "I don't think business men are barred from the city of Washington," he added. "There is nothing disreputable in talking to Senators and Congressmen. They don't live in glass houses.
